TSUNO, SAKI, TOYOKA ARE DESTROYED

CITIES OF OSAKA, KIOTA AND KOBE ARE NOT DAMAGED

AT 5 O'CLOCK FIRES WERE STILL RAGING IN TSUNO AND SAKI

(By United Press)
Osaka, Japan, May 23.—The towns of Tsuno, Saki and Toyoka are believed to have been destroyed by earthquake and fire which hit the western Japanese coast today.

The cities of Osaka, Kiota and Kobe were not damaged by the quake, although the shock felt in these three cities was greater than that felt in Tokio in 1923 when tremendous havoc was wrought to that city.

The quake centered in the Kansai district lying westward of Kiota, which region is more sparsely settled than the part of Japan to the east and north. Toyoka, lying 50 miles north of Kiota, is believed to have been half destroyed by the fire which followed in the track of the earthquake.

A late report indicated that Tsuno, Saki, noted for its hot springs, was probably razed by fire. Direct communication with that region is interrupted, but indirect word indicated that the two towns were still burning at five o'clock in the afternoon. No estimate of the casualties from those towns were reported.

3 TOWNS WIPED OUT BY EARTHQUAKE

Tokio, May 23.—Three towns were destroyed today by an earthquake which originated on the coastal frontier of Hyogo and Kiota, provinces in western Japan.

The number of casualties is not given at the moment, but they are said to be mounting.

Early reports indicated that this new blow to Japan, recently afflicted by serious disasters, has wrought severe havoc on the Japanese seacoast of the little island.

In the three destroyed towns, tunnels, water tanks and buildings collapsed. The cities of Osaka, Kiota and Kobe were reported to have escaped damage as did the naval establishment at Maidzura.

Rescue trains are rushing to the affected area.

Traffic along the Japanese sea region is paralyzed.

Two hundred homes and the railroad station at Toyoka are reported demolished. Messages here report fires adding to the terror at seven points.

SEVERAL HUNDRED DEAD ARE REPORTED

Osaka, Japan, May 23.—Several hundred dead have already been reported as result of the terrific earthquake followed by fire which struck Japan's western coast today. Reports say the casualties are believed to be large. Towns within five square miles of Toyoka were almost completely destroyed.

AMERICAN RED CROSS TO GIVE AID

Washington, May 23.—The American Red Cross which raised $1,000,000 in this country for victims of the Japanese earthquake of 1923 will extend similar relief if the present stricken area of Japan is in accord to the early reports of the disaster.

Red Cross officials here, when informed of the quake by the United Press, went into immediate session to consider relief measures. As soon as officials report, the Red Cross is expected to cable a message of sympathy and offer concrete assistance.

mostly destroyed by fire which followed the earthquake's path today.

In the flourishing important cities of Osaka, Kiota and Kobe, the quake was felt with tremendous shock, even worse than that which rocked Tokio in 1923, but without causing damage.

Mounting casualties are mentioned with many houses consumed by fire. The regions are less populated than the eastern and northern Japanese district.

The direction of the quake tends to indicate a southward movement from the usual belt of heavier earthquakes.

The famous tourist spot, Amanchashitate, otherwise known as "the heavenly bridge," lies in the vicinity of the damaged towns. So far dispatches have indicated that no tourists were affected.

The region was in old Japan where fishing and tilling the soil are the principal occupations.

METHODISTS DENY ANY WAR ON TOBACCO

(By United Press)
Washington, May 23.—Charges that the American anti-tobacco campaign has been exaggerated by the liquor interests for use as propaganda in foreign countries were made by the Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals of the Methodist Episcopal Church, in a statement assuring the public that the anti-tobacco movement is not directed to outlawing tobacco.

"It is interesting to learn from newspapers in New Zealand and other foreign countries that the fanatics are about to prohibit tobacco in the United States," the board said.

"It is interesting to learn that the whole country has been practically upset by a gigantic prohibition effort without the Americans themselves hearing anything about it, the board sarcastically commented.

"So far as we know there is no anti-tobacco organization in America with any funds or any membership of consequence which is doing any work calculated to make the slightest dent in the tobacco trade. A recent meeting in Washington of anti-tobacco people didn't say anything about prohibiting tobacco, to our knowledge.

"Not one prohibitionist in a million favors the prohibition of tobacco."

FIND THE BONES OF CHICKEN DINOSAURS

The boxes contain fossilized bones perhaps millions of years old. One box which has been opened shows delicate bones which could only have belonged to a "monster" as small as a bantam; on the other hand there is a thigh bone four feet nine inches long from a dinosaur which was from 60 to 70 feet long and perhaps 40 feet high.

The museum experts will be occupied for the next 20 years in cleaning the bones and studying them.

No attempt was made by officials to reconcile the apparent contradiction between the president's reported willingness to differentiate between war and relief debts and the opposite policy previously followed by the administration.

DARING AIR MEN MAY HAVE MET SAD DISASTER

(By United Press)
New York, May 23.—United States naval airplanes with the MacMillan Arctic expedition will search for Raold Amundsen and his party this summer if it develops their expedition has come to grief.

Inquiry at the naval department and the National Geographic Society back of the expedition brought the unanimous response today that the three amphibian planes accompanying the expedition would unquestionably be sent to scour the polar waste for the captain and his brave comrades if they are not heard from before that. Such being the case, Amundsen and his party would not have to spend the year trekking across the ice to the northern part of Greenland, they are said to have counted on if their plans failed. The planes are scheduled to arrive at Etah, the Greenland base, the latter part of July. By immediately setting out for the pole, they should be able to locate the explorers within a very few days, it is believed.

CENTRAL PART OF STATE HIT BY THE STORM

COMMUNICATION FACILITIES ARE CRIPPLED IN ST. PAUL TERRITORY

RAIN GIVES DISTRICT TEMPORARY RELIEF FROM RECORD MAY HEAT

(By United Press)
St. Paul, May 23.—The terrific rain and wind storm last night and early today which crippled communication facilities and isolated the central part of the state from the outside world, gave this district temporary relief from record May heat. Two prostrations were reported by Minneapolis police as the mercury touched the 99 degree mark, setting a new heat record for May and ranging within two degrees of the highest temperature on record in the local weather bureau.

Sweeping through a wide area in eastern North Dakota and central Minnesota, the storm tore down miles of telephone and telegraph wires and caused considerable property damage.

One man was injured near Manitoba Junction where the wind uprooted trees, overturned buildings and wrecked communication facilities. Two barns and a house under construction were wrecked at Abercrombie, Minn., 15 miles north of Wahpeton, N. D.

Darkness preceded the heavy rain and wind storm in that section. Several freight cars were blown over in the Great Northern railroad yards at Breckinridge.

Although an inch of rain fell at Fargo, N. D., the wind storm passed around the city, according to reports. All rural telephone and telegraph wires were crippled, however.

Nine Minnesota counties suffered from the wind. Although no estimate of the property damage was available, communication with the Twin Cities was cut off in the storm center early last evening when the second rain storm hit here.

CENTRAL PART OF STATE HIT BY THE STORM

COMMUNICATION FACILITIES ARE CRIPPLED IN ST. PAUL
TERRITORY

RAIN GIVES DISTRICT TEMPORARY
RELIEF FROM RECORD
MAY HEAT

(By United Press)
St. Paul, May 23.—The terrific rain and wind storm last night and early today which crippled communication facilities and isolated the central part of the state from the outside world, gave this district temporary relief from record May heat.

Two prostrations were reported by Minneapolis police as the mercury touched the 99 degree mark, setting a new heat record for May and ranging within two degrees of the highest temperature on record in the local weather bureau.

Sweeping through a wide area in eastern North Dakota and central Minnesota, the storm tore down miles of telephone and telegraph wires and caused considerable property damage.

One man was injured near Mantoba Junction where the wind uprooted trees, overturned buildings and wrecked communication facilities. Two barns and a house under construction were wrecked at Abercrombie, Minn., 15 miles north of Wahpeton, N. D.

Darkness preceded the heavy rain and wind storm in that section. Several freight cars were blown over in the Great Northern railroad yards at Breckinridge.

Although an inch of rain fell at Fargo, N. D., the wind storm passed around the city, according to reports. All rural telephone and telegraph wires were crippled, however.

Nine Minnesota counties suffered from the wind. Although no estimate of the property damage was available, communication with the Twin Cities was cut off in the storm center early last evening when the second rain storm hit here.

Several fires were reported at Melrose, Minn., where six buildings were destroyed and crops damaged.

STORM DAMAGE AT SWANVILLE

Little Falls, May 23.—The storm which raged last night is reported to have done considerable damage at Swanville. One wall of the creamery was reported torn down and also several business buildings. Lumber from the lumber yard was scattered about the village. Many store fronts were reported blown in and several windows broken by the hail.

FOREST FIRE MENACE GONE

St. Paul, May 23.—Heavy rains which followed last night's wind storms have eliminated the forest fire menace in northern Minnesota temporarily, according to reports of the forestry department today. Grover Conzet, state forester, advised Governor Christianson from Grand Marais that rain fell throughout the areas threatened by numerous forest fires recently.

MANY FARM BUILDINGS DESTROYED

St. Paul, May 23.—Hundreds of farm buildings were destroyed and thousands of head of livestock killed and injured in two violent wind storms which swept most of Minnesota last night.

Lines of communication in western and northern central Minnesota were severed causing heavy loss to telephone, telegraph and power companies.

Only two persons were seriously injured, according to reports from the hardest hit area. Andrew Kroll, farm hand, was hurt in the wreckage of a barn near Melrose. Another man was injured near Manitoba.

New Grand Stand at County Fair Grounds Was Completely Demolished

SOME BUILDINGS TWISTED

Sverre Peterson Barn in N. E. Brainerd Blown Down by the Wind

Pequot seemed to be in the direct path of last night's wind storm. The new grand stand at the county fair grounds was completely demolished. It is reported, and the administration building was twisted and moved at one end about six feet.

The barn belonging to Sverre Peterson, 1321 Washington Ave., Northeast, was demolished by the wind, which blew down trees in all sections of the city. One tree near the Northwestern hospital was felled, as was also one in the railway park near the freight depot.

Telephone service on toll lines out of Brainerd was crippled by the storm. A large tree is reported as being torn out by the roots near Pequot and dropped on the main toll line to Brainerd. Lines to Minneapolis, Duluth and Fargo were also badly crippled, but were repaired and placed in service again by noon today.

His Education Lacking

Three-year-old Herbert was taken to his grandfather's for a visit. It was his first visit to the farm and he was much interested in what he saw. He watched eagerly as Hannah dressed the turkey for dinner, and noted that each handful of feathers was placed carefully in a box. Finally his curiosity got the better of him and he asked: "Why do you have to save the feathers, Hannah—for seed?"

At midnight time he was surprised on seeing for the first time where the milk came from, and as the man finished milking one cow the youngster exclaimed: "Now are you going to turn this one's faucets on?"—P's change.

U. S. GAINING 25,000 FARMERS

By LUDWELL DENNY

(United Press Staff Correspondent)
Washington, May 22.—More than 25,000 skilled farmers from the countries of northern Europe will be added to the agrarian population of the United States this year by the selective immigration law, officials here said today on the basis of late consular reports.

Immigration experts use this to demonstrate the successful operation of the law's selective features. The law provides that 50 per cent of each country's quota may be given by preference to specified relatives of American citizens and to alien farmers. Much doubt has existed as to whether the law would actually bring into this country the desired farming classes. But officials now maintain, on the basis on figures for the first nine months of the quota year ending July 1, that the law in this regard has already proved its practical worth.

This optimism is based on percentage figures to April 1, which will presumably be increased by 25 percent or more by July 1. Over 20 percent of Germany's total annual quota is represented by the 10,005 farmers already admitted this year.

Holland, which produces farmers of the very highest type, has already filled 37 percent of its total quota with farmers, and many more thousands are waiting to come to this country.

Denmark, another country famous for its agricultural and dairy methods, has sent to us in nine months 727 farmers, or 26 percent of its total allowance.

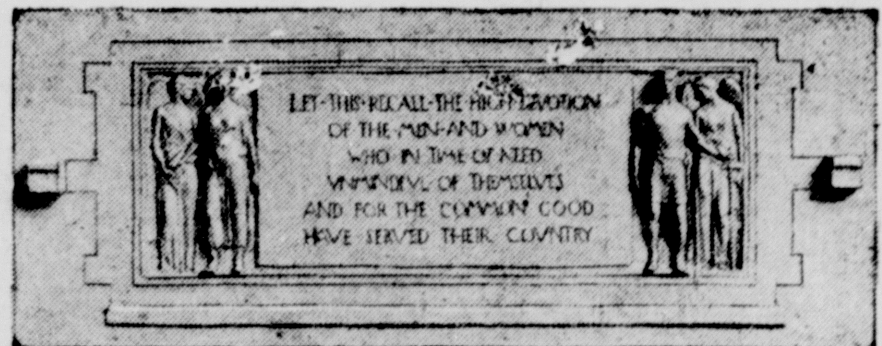

Switzerland leads the percentage of farmer immigrants with 40 percent of its total, though by actual numbers its 35 is far below Germany's contribution of 10,000.

Other countries include: Sweden, which has sent in nine months 2,813 farmers or 29 percent of its total quota; Norway, 22 percent of 1,438; Belgium 152 or 18 percent.

Farmers of the immigration law expected a relatively large proportion of the immigrants to this country from Great Britain would also be from the farming class. The consular reports show, however, that only 1,288 or 4 percent of the total have been farmers. The explanation given is that Great Britain is a part of her empire policy makes very attractive offers to her farmers who will emigrate to Canada or Australia, or her other agricultural dominions and colonies. The British dominions and colonies, in turn, offer more attractions in the way of free transportation and free land than the United States can give.

WILL ERECT MEMORIAL PLAQUE ON STADIUM WALL

The University of Minnesota Stadium, erected as a memorial to Minnesotans who have lost their lives in defense of their country, will be embellished this spring by a splendid memorial plaque, approximately 20 feet by 8, designed in the memorial spirit as a reminder of the structure's spiritual significance. It will bear the motto, "Let this recall the high devotion of the men and women who in time of need, unmindful of themselves, and for the common good, have served their country."

The plaque has been designed by David K. Rubens, a Minneapolis boy, who is now in Paris studying art on the proceeds of a scholarship for excellence which he won last year at a New York art school.

The tablet will be inserted near the top of the stadium at the center of the curve at the closed end. It will be on the outside of the wall, overlooking Oak street.

The regents of the University have also voted to spend a sum not to exceed $100,000 to complete the interior of the stadium, which will serve many of the purposes of a gymnasium, with team rooms, rooms for coaches, quarters for minor athletic teams such as wrestling, boxing, fencing, and the like, showers, dressing rooms and training quarters. With this addition to existing facilities in the Armory the University of Minnesota will have for the first time athletic team quarters that approach in adequacy those that have been erected by other institutions in the Western Conference.

WILD ANIMAL SANCTUARY

YELLOWSTONE PARK CONSIDERED LARGEST AND MOST SUCCESSFUL OF ITS KIND

In Yellowstone Park, perhaps the largest and certainly the most successful wild animal sanctuary in the world, the wild life spent another "delightful" winter, and all the wards of Uncle Sam will be in fine condition to welcome visitors when the park opens June 20.

This is the report from Park Superintendent Horace M. Albright to A. B. Smith, passenger traffic manager of the Northern Pacific railway, the park superintendent adding that already many bear cubs may be seen poking around decayed tree trunks along the by-trails.

Naturalists, more and more, are resorting to Yellowstone for their study of wild animal and bird life, the increase in the number of park animals being very noticeable. This is because of the careful protection afforded them. Hunting is prohibited in Yellowstone except with a camera, and this is encouraged.

Emerson Hough declared that almost the most astonishing thing about Yellowstone was the comfort it affords the travelers. He added: "You may photograph a wild bear and eat a course dinner within the same hour. You perhaps may see a buffalo from your seat in a comfortable motor coach. You may see the Canyon and the geysers and the Grand Tetons and a dozen bold mountain lakes and streams and yet sleep in as good a bed as you left at home. Literally, the world has nothing like this."

Besides many bear and buffalo, there are antelope, mountain sheep, whitetail and mule deer and elk in Yellowstone—and about 600 moose.

Hough said: "No other park, and no other mountain region within our borders, holds such numbers, or such numbers of species of native American big game."

"The bears of Yellowstone have made it famous, as has its Painted Canyon. Its vast elk herds—the last hope of the species in America—have no like anywhere in our country now. The bighorn sheep, rarest and wilder of our big game animals, still lives its old life there. The wise and busy beaver builds its dams as it always did. The antelope still may be seen—shadowy, fleet. The two species of American deer still thrive. Lastly, there still are to be seen some hundreds of the noblest of all our wild animals, the bison."

When protection laws were passed in 1896, hunters had left only 25 buffalo in Yellowstone. This was two years after Hough explored the park on skis and made public the danger then existing of the extinction of the animals. They now have increased to about 1,200. There are two herds, the larger, misnamed the "tame herd," because it is somewhat under control of the rangers, living in the upper Lamar valley where visitors easily may find it. Approach is over a good road. During the summer season, a few of these are driven into pasture at Mammoth Hot Springs for the benefit of tourists. The so-called "wild herd" roams the wilderness round about Yellowstone lake.

The moose are to be seen around the southeast arm of Yellowstone lake and on Hell-roaring creek. Others are to be found in the Beckler river country in the southwest corner of the park.

The beaver are rapidly increasing. Almost every stream shows signs of their presence. On Swan lake flats, in Hayden valley and near Tower Fall there are several colonies. The ponds are easily seen by tourists. There also are some beside the Tower Fall road,

THE LOCAL NEWSPAPER

IN spite of the fact that the metropolitan press now reaches into nearly every town and village in the country, the local newspaper in the United States is each year getting a firmer foundation and becoming more and more useful to its home community. It may be said that the day of the metropolitan newspaper is at hand. This is true, but it is equally as true that the day of the local newspaper is here too.

The metropolitan daily with its world-wide news, its comic sheet and its magazine supplements, while of course essential in our modern civilization, cannot take the place of the home newspaper. The very fact that the big city daily must cover a broad field forbids its becoming local in any sense, and it is in the local field where the home newspaper dominates and where it finds its true usefulness.

For, after all, continues the Glenwood Herald in its review, it is the home news which is most important to most of us. We have the greatest interest in the community in which we live, and in the people who are our neighbors and friends. And it is the local newspaper which records the happenings of the folks at home, and in addition fosters the civic pride and progressive spirit of the community.

It is the home newspaper which boosts the town, year in and year out, which takes the lead in every enterprise which has for its purpose the upbuilding and prosperity of the community.

We frequently hear it said that the old time independent spirit of the newspaper is gone, that its editorial policy is now subservient to the business office. Yet this is not true. There is more unselfish idealism in the average local newspaper than in any other business enterprise. It frequently speaks out in the way which it believes will be for the good of the nation and of the community, regardless of what the consequences may be from a business standpoint. This is more than the average business man will do or can do.

Of course the local newspaper is now on a firm business basis. This is why it is improving from year to year, why it is giving its readers a constantly better newspaper, and why it is increasing its influence for good in the community. But the local newspaper is still the principal booster for the community and it does its boosting often without any hope of material reward.

Unfortunately indeed is the community which neither appreciates nor supports its local newspapers.

THE SOBER-COLORED MALE OF THE SPECIES

THE male of the human family has been the sober-colored individual of the species, reversing the natural order of the lower animals. The peacock, you will remember, has an aurora borealis of a tail, while the female sits in the grasses, hardly distinguishable from the drab vegetation.

Too long has the human male worn inoffensive shades of pants, coats, ties, hats, etc. A change is taking place, and it has been noted by some of the pants and coat makers who voiced their discoveries at a garment makers' convention.

The desire for sex attraction, in plain words, garments so colored as to make a hit with the ladies, is what is causing the stir in the sentiment of the gentlemen.

One authority on things sartorial has been so rash as to predict that in from 50 to 100 years men will be wearing frills, laces and ruffles, as they did when Sir Walter Raleigh spread out his coat to cover a muddy patch in a street crossing so that Queen Elizabeth might walk over dry-shod.

One thing is certain. Variegated hues garments will offer greater selections for the man and will work in corresponding manner to increase the business of the tailors.

The important questions of the hour will then be such momentous cogitations as these occupying the male mind: "Do I look good in lavender?" "Will purple make me look skinny or stout?" "Will yellow make me look youthful or old?" Will black accentuate my figure?"

The days of set lines in ready-made clothing will cause such a manufacturer to get blue in the face, for what manufacturer can predict the prevailing shade for the next season? And the men may get to be like the ladies, refusing a dead color line and each anxious for something original, unique, distinctive, something the other fellow isn't wearing.

LIKED EDITORIAL

THE DISPATCH has received the following letter, self-explanatory, from Charles W. Henke, Assistant Commissioner of the State Game and Fish Department, dated at the capitol on May 21st:

"I note with a great deal of pleasure your editorial in the Saturday, April 25th issue, entitled 'The Game Warden and the Sportsman.'"

"In my opinion you have hit upon the real secret of successful game law enforcement.

"At the present time 'George' is very busy in regard to this particular matter, and the game warden is more or less the 'goat'! 'Successful game law enforcement depends entirely upon the sentiment that sustains a warden in his work.

"I thank you most sincerely for your constructive attitude as consistently maintained in your publication towards the conservation of our wild life resources."

THE DAYS OF "POP" ARE OVER

ONE of the pleasant memories of youthful days is "pop," but a local authority informs us that "pop" is passe, in fact there is no such thing as pop in the lexicon of an up-to-date bottling works. A "pop factory," although very expressive, is a misnomer and is now correctly termed and designated a carbonated beverage bottling works.

The "pop" is a carbonated beverage. Soda pop may be called soda water, but even such an expression is not gaining in popularity.

In the old days no ball game was complete without its vendors of "pop" and the empty "pop" bottle, when flung in the direction of the umpire, was an effective way the fan had of registering his objection to the "ump's" decision.

ONE must admit, at least, that the Shepherd case carries the germs for a good story.

ST. PAUL AUTO CLUB TESTS NEXT WEEK WILL BE BASIS OF CAMPAIGN

St. Paul, May 22.—Automobile headlight tests in St. Paul next week will be made the basis of a campaign for stricter state headlight laws.

All motorists' organizations in the state will be asked to back such a movement.

This was announced today by Frank Madden, chairman, headlights test committee, Automobile club of St. Paul.

"Minnesota," he said, "is one of the most lax states in the Union in regard to headlights. Most of the eastern states recently joined in a conference with Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover, at which uniform regulations to govern headlight beams were agreed upon.

"Minnesota was not in this group, but it is hoped that the next legislature will pass a measure to closely conform to those of the eastern states.

"While we are making the headlight tests next week records will be kept of the number of defective headlights found, and that, we believe, will constitute one of the best arguments that can be placed before the legislature."

Even though every headlight in St. Paul is adjusted in the tests which will start next Monday night, Mr. Madden points out, there will still be thousands of cars in and near the city which have not had these tests, and thus the danger will still continue, though on a much smaller scale near St. Paul.

By Way of a Kittyclism

By DUFORD JENNE

(© 1925, Western Newspaper Union.)

TESS, on her way to the kitchen—the boarders had the run of Mrs. McCarthy's house—almost fell over him. She staggered to her feet, and he did the same, and the kitten, with which he had been playing, made tracks for the hall.

"That was almost a cataclysm," he said, with a quick smile.

She had time to note that his eyes were a clear, deep brown. "Or a kittyclism," she added.

Mrs. McCarthy, busy in her kitchen, looked up with a smile as Tess entered. "Hello, Mischief, you look as if you had something on your mind!"

"I have, Mother Mac. I have just seen a slim, handsome, young man with the eyes of a poet. You better make way with him or I may fall in love with him. I almost fell onto him as it is."

"Mother Mac" chuckled. "But don't you go to falling in love with him, dearie. He's booked up."

"Booked up—meaning?"

"Stupid, he's engaged to the girl who took the alcove room. They are to be married soon."

"I knew it! It's always that way!"

"Hush, child, what a way to talk!"

"You wait till the next one comes along, and see what happens to him. Say, I'd like to see her!"

Tess did see the lucky girl that evening. Her name was Evelyn Harms, and Tess had to admit she was a worthy mate for the brown-eyed "poet"—only it turned out that he was not a poet, but a musician. Tess also discovered that he and his betrothed had known each other only a month.

Attractive as Evelyn was in form and feature, she did not appeal in one way to Tess, whose warm, impulsive, fun-loving heart reacted like a thermometer to the moods of others—one reason why she was making a great success as a registered nurse. There was a little, cold, calculating air about Evelyn that depressed Tess.

"The Poet" became Arkley Chandler by name, and to Tess much more than a name, for he discovered that she liked the foolish songs he liked; and the two of them spent cheerful minutes at Mrs. McCarthy's piano.

Then, suddenly, quietly, on silent feet trouble came. Tess had been away on a case for a week. When she returned, she found that Arkley was ill in his room with a cold and that Evelyn was almost ill herself. And then, to top all, that first evening, the heavy cold developed into pneumonia.

When Tess found that no nurse had been engaged, she went up to the room and offered her services to Evelyn, who accepted them eagerly.

There Tess changed from her gay, impulsive self into the quiet, trained worker, and during those long hours, the first heart-ache she had ever known developed.

She often watched him as he lay in the deep trance of the fever, and once she confessed to herself—"Dear Lad with the merry heart and the singing soul, I hope we can keep you here for her—though I wish you were staying for me!"

The delirium grew and waned as the crisis passed. The doctor said he would live, but it would be days before he was himself, probably.

On one of the days when he lay unconscious and Tess was keeping close watch, Evelyn came in, her eyes hard and dark.

"Miss Lane, I don't know what to do. I supposed he was well paid at the store, and had funds to pay all these bills; but they told me that his salary was really low; and—I hate to take my money to pay—"

"What?" Tess gasped.

"I know how it seems to you, but I supposed he had money enough to take care of us both—and he hasn't."

"Why, Evelyn, that is the fine thing about it! Just you two in the great city! You love each other, and that means that one can look out for the other. Think how terrible it is to be ill, and not a soul caring whether you live or die. Your money can help him now; and then, if you are ill, he can help you. Don't you see? You wouldn't desert him now? That simply can't be what you mean?"

"Er—no—of course not," she answered, looking at the white, still handsome face on the pillow. "I am disappointed in finding out the truth about his financial affairs."

She went out abruptly, and Tess stared after her. "So that's what love means to you. To have nice things, be comfortable, have money to spend; and he will never know just what—"

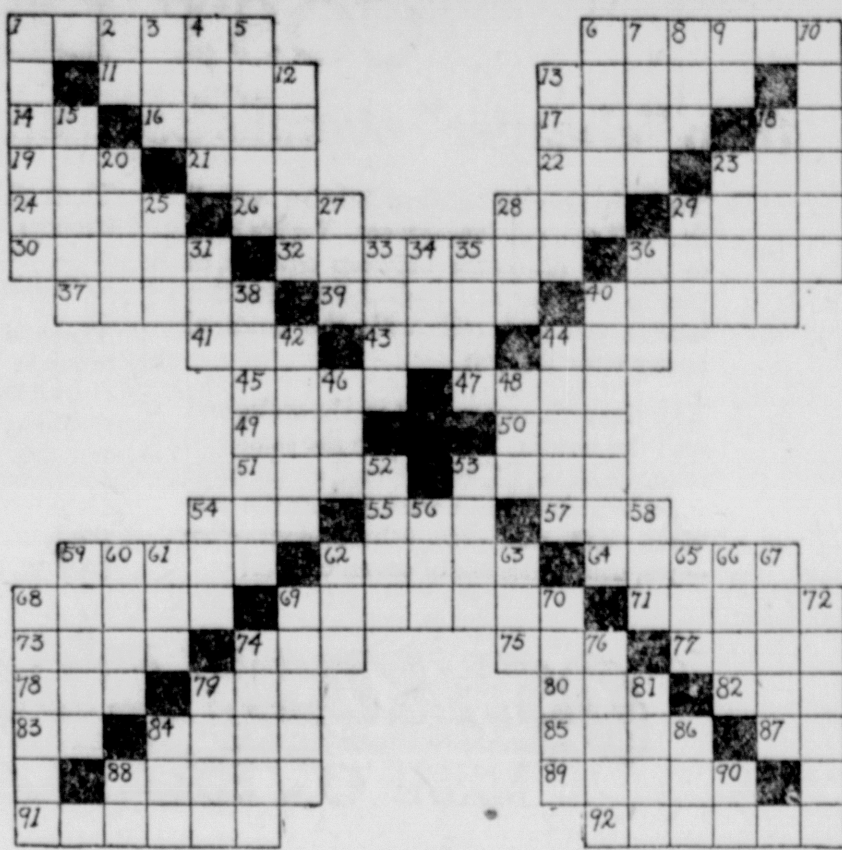

She turned to the bed and started, with a little cry. Had he become conscious while they were talking, and kept still?

She went swiftly to the bedside and leaned over him.

"I heard what—she said," he whispered faintly. "You—two." He paused as if to summon strength or courage. "Tess—I'm glad. Ever since—since the—kittyclism—I've thought of you." His voice became stronger. "Do you suppose you could learn to—love me? There's money—lots of it—my people are wealthy—but I wanted to make good without help—you see—do you suppose?"

She knelt beside him and put her cool, soft, fragrant cheek on his "Laddie, it isn't the money. I've learned, too. I love you. Now hush—and sleep!"

FAMOUS FORTS IN U. S. HISTORY

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

Where Ruled the "Emperor of the West"

At Fort Union, N. D., Kenneth McKenzie once reigned as the "King of the Missouri"; at Bent's Fort in the Arkansas Col. William Bent enjoyed almost unchallenged sovereignty over the vast territory along the Santa Fe trail; but the greatest uncrowned monarch of them all was Dr. John McLoughlin, officially chief factor for the Hudson's Bay company in Oregon but spoken of far and wide as the "Emperor of the West," a benevolent despot who for 22 years ruled over an empire 400,000 square miles in extent, of which his post, Fort Vancouver, Wash., was the capital.

From 1670 to 1810, though theoretically belonging to Great Britain, the Pacific northwest was dominated by the Hudson's Bay company. From 1816 to 1846, under the terms of the Treaty of Ghent, this vast territory was under the joint occupancy of Great Britain and the United States but in reality the word of the H. B. C. was the law, and the Hudson's Bay did not look any too kindly upon American interlopers. The one exception was Dr. McLoughlin, to whom we owe an eternal debt of gratitude.

Fort Vancouver was the result of the merger in 1821 of the Northwest company, which had put John Jacob Astor's Pacific Fur company out of business on the Columbia, with the Hudson's Bay company, which had in turn crushed the opposition of the Northwest organization. McLoughlin was an employee of the Northwest company but after the coalition he was retained by the H. B. C. as chief factor for the Oregon country. In 1824 he began this fort on the Columbia, 60 miles above Fort Astoria.

He soon won the affection of the Indians who called him "The Great White Chief" and his power over them, as well as over all whites who came into contact with him, made him a man whom not even the officers of the Hudson's Bay company dared oppose. Time and again he saved American missionaries and American settlers from massacre or from starving when they arrived in the new country. Incidentally, his reward was the basest kind of ingratitude. In 1846, when the Hudson's Bay company forced him to resign because he would not follow its policy in regard to the American emigration, he was a comparatively poor man, made so by his loans to settlers who never repaid him. History is full of the legend that Marcus Whitman saved Oregon to the United States. But the simple truth is that that honor belongs to Dr. John McLoughlin, the "Emperor of the West" who ruled at Fort Vancouver.

By Way of a Kittyclysm

By DUFORD JENNE

(© 1925, Western Newspaper Union.)

TESS, on her way to the kitchen—the boarders had the run of Mrs. McCarthy's house—almost fell over him. She staggered to her feet, and he did the same, and the kitten, with which he had been playing, made tracks for the hall.

"That was almost a cataclysm," he said, with a quick smile.

She had time to note that his eyes were a clear, deep brown. "Or a kitty-clysm," she added.

Mrs. McCarthy, busy in her kitchen, looked up with a smile as Tess entered. "Hello, mischief, you look as if you had something on your mind!"

"I have, Mother Mac. I have just seen a slim, handsome, young man with the eyes of a poet. You better make way with him or I may fall in love with him. I almost fell onto him as it is."

"Mother Mac" chuckled. "But don't you go to falling in love with him, dearie. He's booked up."

"Booked up—meaning?"

"Stupid, he's engaged to the girl who took the alcove room. They are to be married soon."

"I knew it! It's always that way!"

"Hush, child, what a way to talk!"

"You wait till the next one comes along, and see what happens to him. Say, I'd like to see her!"

Tess did see the lucky girl that evening. Her name was Evelyn Harms, and Tess had to admit she was a worthy mate for the brown-eyed "poet"—only it turned out that he was not a poet, but a musician. Tess also discovered that he and his betrothed had known each other only a month.

Attractive as Evelyn was in form and feature, she did not appeal in one way to Tess, whose warm, impulsive, fun-loving heart reacted like a thermometer to the moods of others—one reason why she was making a great success as a registered nurse. There was a little, cold, calculating air about Evelyn that depressed Tess.

"The Poet" became Arkley Chandler by name, and to Tess much more than a name, for he discovered that she liked the foolish songs he liked; and the two of them spent cheerful minutes at Mrs. McCarthy's piano.

Then, suddenly, quietly, on silent feet trouble came. Tess had been away on a case for a week. When she returned, she found that Arkley was ill in his room with a cold and that Evelyn was almost ill herself. And then, to top all that, first evening, the heavy cold developed into pneumonia.

When Tess found that no nurse had been engaged, she went up to the room and offered her services to Evelyn, who accepted them eagerly.

There Tess changed from her gay, impulsive self into the quiet, trained worker, and during those long hours, the first heart-ache she had ever known developed.

She often watched him as he lay in the deep trance of the fever, and once she confessed to herself—"Dear Lad with the merry heart and the singing soul, I hope we can keep you here for her—though I wish you were staying for me!"

The delirium grew and waned as the crisis passed. The doctor said he would live, but it would be days before he was himself, probably.

On one of the days when he lay unconscious and Tess was keeping close watch, Evelyn came in, her eyes hard and dark.

"Miss Lane, I don't know what to do. I supposed he was well paid at the store, and had funds to pay all these bills; but they told me that his salary was really low; and—I hate to take my money to pay—"

"What?" Tess gasped.

"I know how it seems to you, but I supposed he had money enough to take care of us both—and he hasn't."

"Why, Evelyn, that is the fine thing about it! Just you two in the great city! You love each other, and that means that one can look out for the other. Think how terrible it is to be ill, and not a soul caring whether you live or die. Your money can help him now; and then, if you are ill, he can help you. Don't you see? That simply can't be what you mean?"

"Er—no—of course not," she answered, looking at the white, still handsome face on the pillow. "I am disappointed in finding out the truth about his financial affairs."

She went out abruptly, and Tess stared after her. "So that's what love means to you. To have nice things, be comfortable, have money to spend; and he will never know just what—"

She turned to the bed and started, with a little cry. Had he become conscious while they were talking, and kept still?

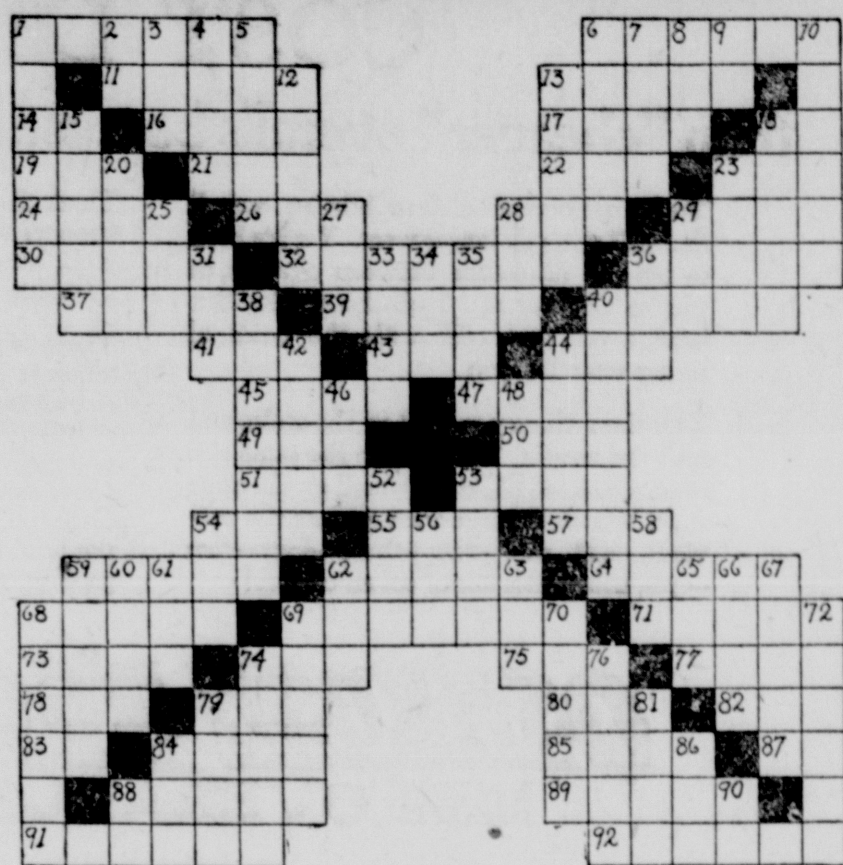

She went swiftly to the bedside and leaned over him.

"I heard what—she said," he whispered faintly. "You—two." He paused as if to summon strength or courage. "Tess—I'm glad. Ever since—since the—kitty-clysm—I've thought of you."

His voice became stronger. "Do you suppose you could learn to—to love me? There's money—lots of it—my people are wealthy—but I wanted to make good without help—you see—do you suppose?"

She knelt beside him and put her cool, soft, fragrant cheek on his "Laddie, it isn't the money, I've learned, too. I love you. Now hush—"

FAMOUS FORTS IN U. S. HISTORY

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

Where Ruled the "Emperor of the West"

At Fort Union, N. D., Kenneth McKenzie once reigned as the "King of the Missouri"; at Bent's Fort in the Arkansas Col. William Bent enjoyed almost unchallenged sovereignty over the vast territory along the Santa Fe trail; but the greatest uncrowned monarch of them all was Dr. John McLoughlin, officially chief factor for the Hudson's Bay company in Oregon but spoken of far and wide as the "Emperor of the West," a benevolent despot who for 22 years ruled over an empire 400,000 square miles in extent, of which his post, Fort Vancouver, Wash., was the capital.

From 1670 to 1816, though theoretically belonging to Great Britain, the Pacific northwest was dominated by the Hudson's Bay company. From 1816 to 1846, under the terms of the Treaty of Ghent, this vast territory was under the joint occupancy of Great Britain and the United States but in reality the word of the H. B. C. was the law, and the Hudson's Bay did not look any too kindly upon American interlopers. The one exception was Dr. McLoughlin, to whom we owe an eternal debt of gratitude.

Fort Vancouver was the result of the merger in 1821 of the Northwest company, which had put John Jacob Astor's Pacific Fur company out of business on the Columbia, with the Hudson's Bay company, which had in turn crushed the opposition of the Northwest organization. McLoughlin was an employee of the Northwest company but after the coalition he was retained by the H. B. C. as chief factor for the Oregon country. In 1824 he began this fort on the Columbia, 60 miles above Fort Astoria.

He soon won the affection of the Indians who called him "The Great White Chief" and his power over them, as well as over all whites who came into contact with him, made him a man whom not even the officers of the Hudson's Bay company dared oppose. Time and again he saved American missionaries and American settlers from massacre or from starving when they arrived in the new country. Incidentally, his reward was the basest kind of ingratitude. In 1846, when the Hudson's Bay company forced him to resign because he would not follow its policy in regard to the American emigration, he was a comparatively poor man, made so by his loans to settlers who never repaid him. History is full of the legend that Marcus Whitman saved Oregon to the United States. But the simple truth is that that honor belongs to Dr. John McLoughlin, the "Emperor of the West" who ruled at Fort Vancouver.

Don't sow portulaca till the second week in May. It won't come up until the weather gets hot.

Annual lupins will make a fine show if you don't know them. Don't give them too rich soil. They are handsome for cutting.

Get all the hardy annual seed into the ground. It's an early season and these standbys won't mind a vagrant frost should it happen along. Poppies, asters, mourning brides, pinks, verbenas, petunias, and others can be sown any time.

Don't be in a rush to get dahlias into the ground, even if they are sprouting. Nip the ends of the sprouts.

If maggots bothered your radishes last year, lime the radish patch before planting this year. Radishes don't need lime but it will put the maggots to flight.

A new wrinkle in bean planting to prevent them rotting if there is a cold spell is to grease them before planting. This method is said to prevent decay. Lima beans are said to have remained in the ground a month with a grease coating without rotting. Melted lard is used. It is worth an experiment with a few limas planted right now.

If you have had bad luck with the perennial lupins, plant the annual varieties, save a season, and they are as fine for cutting and offer as fine colors. They are easier to grow but don't give them rich fare. Poor soil is best for them.

Some of the new races of enormous flowered frilled petunias will make striking ornaments for the window or porch boxes. California has produced some wonderful petunias. They are worth a trial and will be a revelation to admirers of this old-fashioned plant.

Many a man who knows the value of breeding in stock ignores the fact that the same laws of heredity apply in the vegetable kingdom. Fiddled, it was in the study of beans, not of cattle, that Mendel's law originated.

The new French marigold, Josephine, is one of the most prolific bloomers among the annuals and will give material for bouquets from July till freeze. It has longer stems than most French marigolds, is two inches in diameter, single, and comes in rich, velvety shades of mahogany reds and yellows.

Have to Practice Shooting

The reason Argentines rank among the best shots in the world, as shown in various international rifle contests in past years, is that marksmanship is obligatory upon every male citizen of Argentina between the ages of eighteen and forty-five. This is a part of the Argentine system of compulsory military instruction. Not all citizens have to serve in the army, its ranks being recruited by lot, but those chosen may reduce their one-year term of service by three-fourths if they take the marksmanship course. Those not chosen are obliged to take the course anyway. Statistics recently issued by the ministry of war show that during last year 44,000 citizens took lessons at the 130 rifle ranges in the country, and shot 4,500,000 cartridges.

Task for Pianist

Cortot, the celebrated pianist, is fond of a good joke on himself. Cyrano, the Paris periodical, reports this: Dining with friends one night, he was persuaded at the end of the meal to play a rhapsody, which he did with good grace and brilliance. Pale with emotion, a young woman who had been fluttering for a time in her chair suddenly stood up and said: "How divinely you play, maitre, but may I ask you a question?" "Ask it, I beg you." "Is a quaver played quickly?" "Good heavens, I should say it is." "And a semiquaver?" "Much more so." "Oh, maitre," said the lady beseechingly, "do play one for me."

Vegetable Vines for Screens

At its best and neatest a vegetable garden is obviously a vegetable garden, and a few clumps of annuals to add color will not disguise it or render it an altogether ornamental feature of the landscape. The ideal method is to screen it off from the ornamental portion of the domain with shrubs but often this is inconvenient or would take too long so a screen of some other nature is necessary. Utility may be combined with ornament by using vegetable vines. Cucumbers are climbers by nature, although usually grown to run over the ground. In greenhouse culture they climb straight up to the glass.

Pole beans may be used to cover a wire fence of any desired height erected as the foundation for the screen. Melons may also be grown in this way and the ripening is hastened by fuller exposure to the sun, but if the muskmelons of the larger type are grown often it will be necessary to make slings for the melons before they are ripe because of their weight.

The pole beans are the most practical vines for a screen because of their rapid growth and their longer season of bearing and keeping green. Lima beans are also an excellent material for a screen of this kind. Tomatoes may be trained to a height of six feet and make a dense screen if closely planted, say two feet apart, so that the branches interlace, but the crop will not be as large or of as high quality as when grown farther apart. The tomato must be helped on its way upward and frequently tied, while the beans and cucumbers will go up by themselves, if only given the support.

By using a fence as a support for these vines there is much economy of space, particularly in growing cucumbers, which take up a lot of ground space as usually grown, as they will often cover a five-foot square if not checked.

Gourds are handsome vines for a screen although their utility is as ornaments or as playthings for the children. There is a great variety of these curious vines and a mixed packet of seed will furnish many surprises and much interest during the season and especially in the fall when in fruit.

Watch as Compass

It is quite an easy matter to use a watch as a compass. Let your watch lie flat in your hand with the hour hand pointing toward the sun, and the point on the circle half way between the hour hand and XII will be directly south in the northern hemisphere and directly north in the southern hemisphere.

Have the Same Meaning

The words "flue" and "chimney" may be used interchangeably, but the word "chimney" usually has reference to the upright structure of brick, stone or the like that extends some distance above a building; it also has reference to the funnel or stack of a steam boiler. The word "flue" is the channel or passage for smoke, air and the gases of combustion to pass through.

An Irishman had been unfortunate in his sons, who neglected him and allowed him to die in poverty. When his casket was being carried out by his ungrateful offspring a neighbor remarked, "Sure, it's the first time the byes ever gave the ould man a lift."

REMEMBER BLUE MEDAL

than "cheaper" overalls because they give more wear

You're willing and glad to buy an overall that will give you longer wear. Yet it's hard to tell the difference between overalls, as they're all blue and look about alike. But here's a test that will settle the point of longer wear for you.

Toss the ordinary overall on the scales and read the weight. Then place the same size in an Oshkosh B'Gosh Overall on the same scale. Watch the indicator go past the previous mark, one—two—three—four—five—yes, sometimes six or seven ounces!

That's the story! Heavier denim has larger, stronger threads and more of them to the inch, hence it wears longer and gives you more for your money.

There is no other overall that will weigh as much as Oshkosh B'Gosh! There is no other overall that will wear as long or actually cost as little. These are not idle statements. We will gladly prove the former to you in our store. You can prove the latter by trying an Oshkosh B'Gosh in actual service. That's the final test. Remember, "they must make good or we will."

REMEMBER BLUE MEDAL

COST LESS than "cheaper" overalls because they give more wear

You're willing and glad to buy an overall that will give you longer wear. Yet it's hard to tell the difference between overalls, as they're all blue and look about alike. But here's a test that will settle the point of longer wear for you.

Toss the ordinary overall on the scales and read the weight. Then place the same size in an Oshkosh B'Gosh Overall on the same scale. Watch the indicator go past the previous mark, one—two—three—four—five—yes, sometimes six or seven ounces!

That's the story! Heavier denim has larger, stronger threads and more of them to the inch, hence it wears longer and gives you more for your money.

There is no other overall that will weigh as much as Oshkosh B'Gosh! There is no other overall that will wear as long or actually cost as little. These are not idle statements. We will gladly prove the former to you in our store. You can prove the latter by trying an Oshkosh B'Gosh in actual service. That's the final test. Remember, "they must make good or we will."

PARADE INITIATES VISIT

Followed by Program at Park Theatre, Present of Steamed Pine
Made to City's Guests

The special train, bearing the Minneapolis Friendship tour, wholesalers on their 13th annual trade tour, arrived in Brainerd at 10:30 o'clock this Saturday morning, and were met at the depot by a large delegation of local business men and practically the entire kid population of the city, the latter having received a special invitation to be present.

The parade formed immediately, making the rounds of the downtown section, the line of march following Front street to Fifth, Fifth street south to Laurel, thence east to Broadway, north to Front, and west to the Park theatre.

Leading the parade was W. H. Stephens, marshal of the tour, bearing the American flag, and escorted by Mayor George A. Cain, and F. H. Gruenhagen, president of the Chamber of Commerce, C. N. Erickson, chairman of the Chamber's special committee in charge of welcoming the visitors, and the presidents of the Rotary and Lions clubs. Next came Michael Jalma and his famous band, then members of the trade tour, Brainerd business men and last but not least, the children.

The program was held at the New Park theatre, which was crowded to capacity. Jalma's band opened the program with several selections, and was followed by the address of welcome, made by F. H. Gruenhagen. The response was made by John A. Gurley, chairman of the Friendship Tour.

Johnny McGovern, all-American quarterback and captain of the 1909 University of Minnesota football team, who is being considered for the position as coach at the University to succeed Bill Spaulding, was introduced and took charge of the balance of the program.

The WCCO Gold Medal broadcast station's male quartet entertained with several numbers, the first being "How Do You Do, Brainerd Merchants," and the second "Oh Katharina." The quartet was called back several times, and responded very graciously.

Roy T. Burke, secretary of the tour, was introduced and rendered a piano solo, "The Brainerd Rag," dedicated to this city, and written by Mr. Burke. He also acted as accompanist for the WCCO quartet in its second appearance, when it sang "Minnesota Girl."

The Pullman Porter's quartet received a hearty welcome, and sang several old time negro spirituals, which were heartily enjoyed. This quartet has accompanied a great many trade tours and other special excursions, and has made quite a reputation as a singing organization.

J. H. W. Mackie, chairman of the Speakers Bureau, sang as a solo, "Roamin' in The Gloamin'," and the program closed with a band number.

The visitors were generous in their distribution of souvenirs, both to the children and the grownups. Brainerd reciprocated by presenting the Minneapolis delegation with sufficient wall-eyed pike steaks for their dinners.

A feature of the parade was provided by R. R. Wise, who as president of the Ten Thousand Lakes of Minnesota Association, had several dozen Boy Scouts marching and carry long bamboo fishpoles to which were attached lines with large pastboard fish labeled, "It's a poor fish that hasn't seen Minnesota lakes." These fish were also distributed among the visitors.

Both the Minneapolis and the Brainerd business men appreciated very much the courtesy of George Irwin, manager of the New Park, who threw open his theatre and donated its use for the program.

The high honors in the Himerick contest went to Mrs. J. A. McColl whose lines were as follows:
All our friends from far and near
Will be in town when the tour gets here.

And when they arrive
Sure as you're alive
They'll find our friendship sincere.

The special train pulled out at 12:30 o'clock for Little Falls, Sauk Rapids and St. Cloud, on the last leg of its week's tour. It will arrive in Minneapolis tonight.

STATUES OF LAVA ON EASTER ISLAND

Modern Scientists at Loss to Account for Cult.

Easter Island, in the South Pacific, which recently was reported to have vanished in a submarine convulsion, still waves its fringed palms in air. Capt. Alfred Kling sends to Illustrierte Zeitung, Berlin, an account of some of its peculiarities.

"In former times," the captain writes, "the tribes and clans on the island lived in constant warfare with each other. The captives were eaten. Many human bones still lie about in the caves of the island. The original Kanakas had a very queer cult, for which they built gigantic statues of lava. The biggest of these statues is that of the thunder god. It is twenty-one meters long and seven meters wide and weighs twenty tons. Whether these stone monuments were idols or the statues of famous island personalities cannot be ascertained.

"Some of the monuments carry a mysterious hieroglyphic script. There are about 555 of these giants, the tokens of former civilization. In 1883 the island was discovered by Peru slave dealers, who caught the majority of the Kanakas and took them by force to the Peruvian guano islands, where they died of epidemics.

"The island people own wild chickens and pigs. The chickens fly like pheasants and stay at night in the trees. The owners identify their chickens by cuts on the toes. Wildcats are the only game on Easter Island. Daytime is determined by the position of the sun. Tobacco plants grow on the island. The natives use banana leaves as cigarette paper; they always carry a provision of banana leaves at their belt.

"I could never quite find out how marital conditions were on the island. It seemed to me that marriage among members of the same household was prohibited. A violation of this law was punished by putting both offenders to death. Otherwise there was complete prenuptial freedom. Cautious fathers shut their daughters up."

Dugouts for Dwellings

In Katvyk, a small fishing village on the shore of the North sea, the housing shortage is so intense that many inhabitants are obliged to live in trenches constructed during the World war to defend the Dutch coast against surprise attack. The attention of walkers on the dunes is aroused by chimneys sticking out of the trench tops. In dark, narrowed dugouts large families are sometimes quartered. Small tables on which the machine guns were placed in wartime, chairs and field beds are the only furniture. The loopholes have been transformed into windows. Water and light are lacking. Lodgers profit by the curiosity of passers-by by exhibiting their "dens" for a small fee.

Prolific Silver Lode

The Veta Madre, a famous silver lode, near Guanajuato, Mexico, which was discovered in 1563, it has been calculated, yielded one-fifth of all the silver current in the world up to the year 1800.

Farm Grows Walking Sticks

In Europe, naturally grown walking sticks or canes are more popular than in America and to attest this fact there is the walking stick farm located in Surrey, England. Here an entire farm is devoted to growing sapling ash and cherry for the manufacture of canes and umbrella sticks.

Dugouts for Dwellings

In Katzyk, a small fishing village on the shore of the North sea, the housing shortage is so intense that many inhabitants are obliged to live in trenches constructed during the World war to defend the Dutch coast against surprise attack. The attention of walkers on the dunes is aroused by chimneys sticking out of the trench tops. In dark, narrowed dugouts large families are sometimes quartered. Small tables on which the machine guns were placed in wartime, chairs and field beds are the only furniture. The loopholes have been transformed into windows. Water and light are lacking. Lodgers profit by the curiosity of passers-by by exhibiting their "dens" for a small fee.

In Europe, naturally grown walking sticks or canes are more popular than in America and to attest this fact there is the walking stick farm located in Surrey, England. Here an entire farm is devoted to growing sapling ash and cherry for the manufacture of canes and umbrella sticks.

SISLER AND SANDE NOTABLE COMEBACKS

By HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Sports Editor)

New York, May 23.—Two sensational comebacks by Earl Sande and George Sisler were most interesting features of the early outdoor sport season. The premier American jockey and the perfect ball player overcame physical disabilities that medical science gave slight hope of curing and they went back to work to score even greater successes than they had achieved before they encountered misfortune.

Sande, it will be recalled, went down under a pile of horses at the Saratoga track last August and was taken to a hospital dangerously injured. He had a broken thigh, several broken ribs, a dislocated shoulder and serious internal injuries. Physicians said they hoped they could pull him through, but they said he never would be able to ride again. It was feared that his injured leg would be shorter and that he would come out of it with a mental hazard that would make him timid in a tight place.

The great little jockey, who has a personal following as large as Babe Ruth's, insisted that he would get well and that he would return to the saddle. By a careful diet during the months that he was confined to the bed he kept down his weight and when spring opened the training season he went to the Jamaica track and tried himself.

After a slow process of training he announced that he was going to ride and that he felt he could boot a horse home as well as he ever did. He showed so much skill with his early mounts that Joseph E. Widener gave him a retainer of $25,000 a year for a contract giving the Widener stable first call on his services. It was understood also that he was given a share of the earnings from his winning mounts. William Ziegler, another prominent horseman, thought so highly of his ability that he gave him a retainer of $17,500 for second call on his services.

Outside the big money angle, the comeback of Sisler is just as interesting. Two years ago when Sisler had earned the title as the perfect ball player he was afflicted with eye trouble and he was unable to play all during the 1923 season. He insisted that he would be able to come back, but it was generally doubted. He kept his head up and in the spring of 1924 he reported at the training camp of the St. Louis Browns and said he was ready for duty.

His comeback wasn't encouraging last year. He played well, but he didn't hit and field like the perfect ball player that he was. Even his own home town fans despaired that he would ever be able to play as a first class major league first baseman.

Sisler kept at it and this year he came back with a bang. He started hitting better than he did when he was one of the best in the American League and his fielding improved correspondingly. He hit safely in every game over a period of weeks at the start of the race and he inspired the whole St. Louis team. Doctors believe that there is only a very slight chance that his affliction will come back.

MILLER HUGGINS TO

Cleveland, May 22.—Several changes in the lineup of the New York Yankees are considered certain now as a result of the protracted slump which has put the team in seventh position. Miller Huggins, manager of the team, reprimanded the players severely after yesterday's game, which was blown to the Indians in the ninth inning. It was said he threatened to go to work on some of the next pay checks.

FOUR DAY OUTING OF NEWSPAPERMEN

(By United Press)

Grand Forks, May 23.—Newspapermen of North Dakota and North-east Minnesota and their guests will conduct a four day outing at Detroit, Minn., June 11-15, according to an announcement by J. F. Bacon, president of the North Dakota Press Association.

Invitations to the outing will be extended to state officials, including Governor S. G. Sorlie, of North Dakota and Governor Theodore Christensen, of Minnesota, a former editor.

Delegates and guests will be registered June 12, after which they will be taken on an automobile tour of the entire lake region, of which Detroit is the center.

Featuring the meeting will be the "army style" dinners, fishing parties, games between the editors of the two states and a program of addresses. It is expected that more than 600 editors will attend the outing.

Engineers Use Airplanes

The airplane has displaced the canoe as first assistant to engineers. No longer is the slower means of travel used to any extent to survey untraveled country. Instead, the engineer hops into a plane and is carried over the trackless highlands, covering a route in a few hours that formerly took many days by canoe and on foot. Such is the romance of engineering as recently enjoyed by H. K. Wickstead in locating a railroad across western Quebec, remarks the Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Does Work of Ten

An unusually compact mechanical cabinetmaker, which requires only a one-horse power motor, can do the work of ten men. The machine is declared almost as versatile as larger machines designed for similar purposes. The rip gage is used right and left, and also as a guard over the circular saw. The saw table will tilt to an angle of 45 degrees. A hand wheel adjusts the projection of the saw above the table. Pressure rollers hold work firmly on the table when planing is being done.

To Waterproof Shellac

A shellac finish on furniture or woodwork can be made fairly waterproof by the application of two or three coats of banana "oil." The last coat of shellac must be sand-papered as smooth as possible, and the liquid applied generously with a soft brush such as is used for varnish, says Popular Science Monthly. Each coat should be sand-papered lightly. Shellac treated in this way dries with a dull finish, but can be brightened by the application of furniture wax.

Old Feminine Ornament

A necklace thought to be seventy-five thousand years old and once the adornment of a cave woman of southern France is now at the Art Institute of Chicago. The beads are of ivory, deer antler and polished stone, and some of them bear tiny, crude carvings. A French archeologist found the necklace in a cave, and the museum obtained it from him.—Youth's Companion.

STAFF

By HENRY L. FARRELL
New York, May 23.—"Connie Mack has organized a team as strong, potentially as the champions he disbanded in 1914, because they were too good, and he will win the American league pennant sure," a veteran American league coach said here today.

"I am not working for the Athletics. I might get a call from the boss, if he knew I was going round plugging for them, but by this time it is no state secret that the Athletics are not a flash and that they are up to stay."

"Mack has everything that a champion team needs, young hustling players, smart players well schooled, fine pitching and a winning spirit. In Cochrane, the former college star, he has the best catcher in baseball. He is the one new player, who has really made the team. He has put a dash and fire in their play that thrills an old timer. I do not believe I have ever seen a better prospect. He's a killing hitter, a deadly thrower and the fastest man to first base in the league."

"Harris, Gray and Rommel are the best working trio of pitchers in the league and they will have another one in Lefty Groves, who has had a hard time getting started."

"I cannot see the Yankees at all. The White Sox cannot keep up their race. The Tigers are shot with an infield weakness and the Senators haven't the real class to go over the entire route with the throttle open."

SISLER AND SANDE NOTABLE COMEBACKS

By HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Sports Editor)

New York, May 23.—Two sensational comebacks by Earl Sande and George Sisler were most interesting features of the early outdoor sport season. The premier American jockey and the perfect ball player overcame physical disabilities that medical science gave slight hope of curing and they went back to work to score even greater successes than they had achieved before they encountered misfortune.

Sande, it will be recalled, went down under a pile of horses at the Saratoga track last August and was taken to a hospital dangerously injured. He had a broken thigh, several broken ribs, a dislocated shoulder and serious internal injuries. Physicians said they hoped they could pull him through but they said he never would be able to ride again. It was feared that his injured leg would be shorter and that he would come out of it with a mental hazard that would make him timid in a tight place.

The great little jockey, who has a personal following as large as Babe Ruth's, insisted that he would get well and that he would return to the saddle. By a careful diet during the months that he was confined to the bed he kept down his weight and when spring opened the training season he went to the Jamaica track and tried himself.

After a slow process of training he announced that he was going to ride and that he felt he could boot a horse home as well as he ever did.

He showed so much skill with his early mounts that Joseph E. Widener gave him a retainer of $25,000 a year for a contract giving the Widener stable first call on his services. It was understood also that he was given a share of the earnings from his winning mounts. William Ziegler, another prominent horseman, thought so highly of his ability that he gave him a retainer of $17,500 for second call on his services.

Outside the big money angle, the comeback of Sisler is just as interesting. Two years ago when Sisler had earned the title as the perfect ball player he was afflicted with eye trouble and he was unable to play all during the 1923 season. He insisted that he would be able to come back, but it was generally doubted. He kept his head up and in the spring of 1924 he reported at the training camp of the St. Louis Browns and said he was ready for duty.

His comeback wasn't encouraging last year. He played well, but he didn't hit and field like the perfect ball player that he was. Even his own home town fans despaired that he would ever be able to play as a first class major league first baseman.

Sisler kept at it and this year he came back with a bang. He started hitting better than he did when he was one of the best in the American League and his fielding improved correspondingly. He hit safely in every game over a period of weeks at the start of the race and he inspired the whole St. Louis team. Doctors believe that there is only a very slight chance that his affliction will come back.

MILLER HUGGINS TO SHOW BOYS WHO IS BOSS OF YANKEES

Cleveland, May 22.—Several changes in the lineup of the New York Yankees are considered certain now as a result of the protracted slump which has put the team in seventh position. Miller Huggins, manager of the team, reprimanded the players severely after yesterday's game, which was blown to the Indians in the ninth inning. It was said he threatened to go to work on some of the next pay checks.

CONNIE MACK HAS MANY YOUNG HURLERS ON STAFF

By HENRY L. FARRELL
New York, May 23.—"Connie Mack has organized a team as strong potentially as the champions he disbanded in 1914, because they were too good, and he will win the American league pennant sure," a veteran American league coach said here today.

"I am not working for the Athletics. I might get a call from the boss, if he knew I was going round plugging for them, but by this time it is no state secret that the Athletics are not a flash and that they are up to stay."

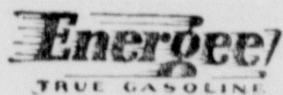

"Mack has everything that a champion team needs, young hustling players, smart players well schooled, fine pitching and a winning spirit. In Cochrane, the former college star, he has the best catcher in baseball. He is the one new player, who has really made the team. He has put a dash and fire in their play that thrills an old timer. I do not believe I have ever seen a better prospect. He's a killing hitter, a deadly thrower and the fastest man to first base in the league."

"Harris, Gray and Rommel are the best working trio of pitchers in the league and they will have another one in Lefty Groves, who has had a hard time getting started."

"I cannot see the Yankees at all. The White Sox cannot keep up their race. The Tigers are shot with an infield weakness and the Senators haven't the real class to go over the entire route with the throttle open."

Marie Prevost and Monte Blue in Warner Film

There is talent aplenty in the cast that interprets "Being Respectable," the screen version of the Grace Flandrau novel, showing at the New Park tonight only.

Heading the cast are Marie Prevost and Monte Blue, who by this time have become almost a pair of inseparables, since this is the fifth picture in which they play together.

Lovely Trio in New Carey Film at Lyceum

Harry Carey has three of the screen's most beautiful women in his support in "Soft Shoes," his new Hunt Stromberg Production, which is being featured at the Lyceum Theatre tonight only.

Lillian Rich, popular leading lady, Harriet Hammond, one of Mack Sennett's famous bathing girls, and Majel Coleman, a beauty contest winner, form this trio of loveliness.

"Soft Shoes" is a comedy melodrama and totally different from any thing in which Carey has ever appeared before.

Jack Holt, Lois Wilson and Noah Beery in Zane Grey's "The Thundering Herd" A Paramount Picture

"The Thundering Herd" is Coming to the New Park on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday

Good news for local film fans! "The Thundering Herd," Paramount's celluloid version of the famous Zane Grey novel, is headed this way and will make its local debut at the New Park Theatre Sunday.

It is a romance of the "Old West" that will carry one from the pavements of today to the trails of yesterday, from the limousines of this period to the covered wagons of 1876.

The picture deals with two of the many caravans of pioneers that started west to hunt buffalo and establish themselves in the new land. In one caravan are Jack Holt, Raymond Hatton and Charles Ogle; in the other, Lois Wilson, Noah Beery and Lillian Leighton. Beery, who is Miss Wilson's guardian, mistreats her and she endeavors to escape. Holt, in love with her, tries to aid her but is himself shot in the attempt.

Holt's company is attacked by a band of five hundred Indians. The tiny handful of buffalo hunters battle until they are out of shot. Holt heroically risks his life in crawling through the enemy lines to an outlying ammunition wagon and turns the tide of victory.

Meanwhile dissension arise in the Beery outfit, and during the fight that follows, Miss Wilson makes her escape, but is sighted and pursued by a war-party of Indians. In trying to get away from them, she is caught in a stampede of two thousand fear-crazed buffalo.
